

ABSTRACT

A method includes identifying a plurality of states and associated state classes to a state machine, identifying a plurality of events and associated state transitions to the state machine, and the state machine creating state objects and a transition map according to the plurality of states and events.